BACKGROUND

Haas' Intellectual Property

6. Haas is one of the nation's largest producers of camouflage, camouflage clothing, and accessories. Since 1986, Haas has manufactured, and licensed for manufacture by third parties, camouflage, camouflage clothing, and accessories under the trademark MOSSY OAK®. Additionally, Haas markets its products under a number of other marks, many of which are associated with its various camouflage patterns, including Haas' BOTTOMLAND® Pattern. Haas' BOTTOMLAND® Pattern has been widely advertised, and products that incorporate the BOTTOMLAND® Pattern have been extensively offered throughout the United States and foreign countries. The BOTTOMLAND® Pattern has become, through widespread and favorable public acceptance and recognition, an asset of substantial value as a symbol of Haas, its quality products, and its good will. Haas' BOTTOMLAND® Pattern has become one of the most popular, and best-selling, camouflage patterns in the history of the camouflage industry. Haas licenses the BOTTOMLAND® Pattern to approximately 600 licensees throughout the United States and foreign countries.

7. Haas has obtained registration with the United States Copyright Office ("Copyright Office") for the BOTTOMLAND® Pattern. The Copyright Office issued Certificate of Registration No. VAu000096523 to Haas for the work titled "Mossy Oak" as a fabric design, effective March 24, 1986.[1] The BOTTOMLAND® registration is in full force and effect. Additionally, the BOTTOMLAND® registration was made before five years after first publication of the BOTTOMLAND® Pattern and is therefore presumed valid under 17 U.S.C. § 410(c). A true and correct copy of the BOTTOMLAND® registration is attached hereto as Exhibit 1.

[1] Although the title of the certificate of registration refers to the "Mossy Oak" pattern, Haas markets and sells the registered pattern to consumers under the trademark BOTTOMLAND®. Accordingly, the term "BOTTOMLAND® Pattern" will refer to the Mossy Oak certificate of registration attached as Exhibit 1 hereto.

Pattern on at least its website and in brick-and-mortar stores. As an additional example of its deliberate and willful conduct, Ariat has told Haas that it plans to continue to copy, reproduce, distribute, and/or publicly display infringing copies of the BOTTOMLAND® Pattern without Haas' consent or authorization by launching another clothing product with the same Accused Pattern and/or Accused Pattern Print in 2026.

22. On November 4, 2025, Haas notified Ariat, in writing, that Ariat's conduct infringed Haas' BOTTOMLAND® Pattern. Attached as Exhibit 4 is a copy of the correspondence from Haas to Ariat.

23. However, despite having actual knowledge of its blatant infringement, Defendant continues to deliberately and willfully display and distribute its products bearing the Accused Pattern and/or Accused Pattern Print in 2026.

24. As a former licensee of Haas Outdoors, Ariat had access to Haas' MOSSY OAK® patterns. Until as recently as August 2025, Haas was in communication with Ariat about becoming a licensee once again so that Ariat could incorporate, among other MOSSY OAK® patterns, the BOTTOMLAND® Pattern with Ariat's products. During the course of these communications, Haas representatives provided Ariat representatives a MOSSY OAK® brand deck, which extensively references and shows the BOTTOMLAND® Pattern throughout. Accordingly, Ariat had access to Haas' BOTTOMLAND® Pattern in order to copy the BOTTOMLAND® Pattern.

25. Ariat does not hold a license, consent, or other authorization from Haas to use any portion of the BOTTOMLAND® Pattern. Ariat's acts of utilizing and incorporating the Accused Pattern on its products constitutes unauthorized reproduction, preparation of derivative works, distribution, and public display of Haas' copyrighted BOTTOMLAND® Pattern in violation of 17 U.S.C. § 501 et seq.

26. Through its copying of the BOTTOMLAND® Pattern, through creating and distributing a pattern substantially similar to Haas' BOTTOMLAND® Pattern, and through creating and distributing a derivative of the BOTTOMLAND® Pattern, Defendant seeks to trade on the good will of Haas and its BOTTOMLAND® Pattern, while seeking to avoid payment to Haas for use of its highly valuable intellectual property.

Haas for use of its highly valuable intellectual property.

COUNT I

Copyright Infringement

27. Haas incorporates by reference the allegations of Paragraphs 1 through 26 herein.

28. Haas' BOTTOMLAND® Pattern contains artwork protected by and registered under the copyright laws of the United States. Despite this protection, Defendant has willfully misappropriated such pattern and used a pattern substantially similar to that of the BOTTOMLAND® Pattern on its products. This misappropriation of Haas' original work of authorship constitutes copyright infringement in violation of 17 U.S.C. § 501. Despite having notice that such conduct infringes Haas' BOTTOMLAND® Pattern, Ariat has and continues to copy, reproduce, distribute and/or publicly display infringing copies of the BOTTOMLAND® Pattern without Haas' consent or authorization.

29. Upon information and belief, Ariat's infringement of Haas' BOTTOMLAND® Pattern is deliberate, willful, and in utter disregard of Haas' rights. Upon information and belief, Ariat's brazen violation of Haas' rights in and to its BOTTOMLAND® Pattern will invite others to violate Haas' intellectual property rights, which will materially damage Haas' ability to license its MOSSY OAK® patterns, including its BOTTOMLAND® Pattern.

30. Defendant's actions have caused and—unless enjoined by this Court—will continue to cause irreparable injury to Haas for which Haas has no adequate remedy at law. Haas is therefore entitled to a preliminary and permanent injunction enjoining and restraining Defendant from reproducing, distributing, displaying, or other use of the Accused Pattern or any other pattern that is substantially similar thereto or derivative thereof.

31. Indeed, unless enjoined, Ariat has told Haas that it plans to market and distribute another clothing product with the same Accused Pattern in 2026. Accordingly, Haas is entitled to preliminary and permanent injunctive relief prohibiting further reproduction or distribution of the Accused Pattern, or any work substantially similar thereto or derivative thereof, an accounting for all profits recognized by Defendant from such copying, statutory damages under 17 U.S.C.

§504(c), all damages incurred by Haas as a result of Defendant's conduct, and reasonable attorney fees under 17 U.S.C. §505.

Accused Pattern, or any work substantially similar thereto or derivative thereof, an accounting for all profits recognized by Defendant from such copying, statutory damages under 17 U.S.C. §504(c), all damages incurred by Haas as a result of Defendant's conduct, and reasonable attorney fees under 17 U.S.C. §505.

COUNT II

Preliminary Injunctive Relief

COUNT II

Preliminary Injunctive Relief

32. Haas incorporates by reference the allegations of Paragraphs 1 through 31 herein.

33. Haas incorporates by reference the allegations of Paragraphs 1 through 31 herein.

Pursuant to 17 U.S.C. § 502 and based on the allegations above, Haas is entitled to preliminary injunctive relief prohibiting Defendant's further infringement of Haas' BOTTOMLAND® Pattern, including but not limited to Ariat's further use of the Accused Pattern and Accused Pattern Print, and creation or use of derivative patterns thereof.

34. There is a substantial likelihood that Haas will succeed on the merits of all of its claims against Defendant, based on Defendant's unlawful and intentional infringement of the BOTTOMLAND® Pattern.

35. Defendant's actions complained of above are jeopardizing, and, if allowed to proceed, will continue to jeopardize the goodwill of Haas in its valuable intellectual property. Such acts have caused, are causing and will continue to cause, irreparable injury to Haas and the consuming public. The balance of the equities favor the granting of injunctive relief: the threatened injury to Haas' reputation and goodwill outweighs any hypothetical damage that the proposed injunction may cause Defendant. Finally, the public interest favors the issuance of an injunction in this case.

36. Without the Court's granting the relief requested, Haas will continue to suffer irreparable harm, for which there is no adequate remedy at law.

37. Accordingly, Haas is entitled to preliminary injunctive relief prohibiting Defendant, its partners, agents, employees, affiliates, and all those acting in concert with it, from infringing Haas' BOTTOMLAND® Pattern.

37. Accordingly, Haas is entitled to preliminary injunctive relief prohibiting Defendant, its partners, agents, employees, affiliates, and all those acting in concert with it, from infringing Haas' BOTTOMLAND® Pattern.

COUNT III

Permanent Injunctive Relief

38. Haas incorporates by reference the allegations of Paragraphs 1 through 37 herein.

39. Pursuant to 17 U.S.C. § 502, Haas is entitled to permanent injunctive relief prohibiting Defendant's further infringement of Haas' BOTTOMLAND® Pattern, including but not limited to Ariat's further use of the Accused Pattern and Accused Pattern Print, and creation or use of derivative patterns thereof.

40. Accordingly, Haas is entitled to permanent injunctive relief prohibiting Defendant, its partners, agents, employees, affiliates, and all those acting in concert with it, from infringing Haas' BOTTOMLAND® Pattern.

PRAYER FOR RELIEF
